Emergency Care Journal is the official Journal of the Academy of Emergency Medicine and Care (AcEMC). It is an international, peer-reviewed journal dedicated to improve the quality of care by publishing the highest quality science for acute medical care and related medical specialties.

The journal welcomes submissions from international contributors and researchers of all specialties involved in acute medical conditions.

Emergency Care Journal publishes original articles, review articles, opinion reports, case reports, images in emergency, letters to the editors, commentaries, book reviews, editorials and other educational information related to the practice, teaching, and environment of emergency medicine.

In addition to general topics, ECJ also publishes articles on out-of-hospital emergency medical services, pediatric emergency medicine, injury and disease prevention, health policy and ethics, disaster management, toxicology, and related topics.

Although most of published research is clinical, there is also strong interest for basic science research pertinent to emergency medicine, thus including all clinical, diagnostic and therapeutic areas of medicine involved in the emergency care management.
